Company Profile

Andcosta is an Italian company specialising in the creation and manufacture of design lamps, boasting a strong experience in custom project management.

After a wave of expansion, the new headquarters of Andcosta are now based in a historical textile mill in the town of Thiene, a few miles from Venice. This industrial archaeology building was skilfully revamped with a view to adapting the existing 5000 sq.m floorspace and emphasising its value. The facility hosts the brand offices, graphics and design operations, the production department, the shipping department, the photographic studio, the showroom, as well as areas where visitors can find out about the world of design and architecture.

The driving force of Andcosta is design and production flexibility, in addition to the perfect balance achieved between excellence of handicraft processes performed by the hands of long experienced masters and the industrial technological potential.

Andcosta stands out for its ability to monitor excellence throughout the supply chain, from communication between designers and clients until finished product manufacturing. Technological evolution and the style trends in design and architecture are under the meticulous lens of the company in each and every step of the manufacturing process with a view to keeping the quality level high.

Andcosta is now in a position to offer extensive flexibility so as to meet the customers' needs, on the one hand, and production peaks, on the other. The company can deliver an accurate and punctual service, offer short lead times even when large volumes of material are involved, and provide an efficient after-sales service.

Andcosta selects the materials with great care and considers sustainability an integral part of the Italian design philosophy.

Safeguarding the quality of our products is a top priority for our company. The strength and stability of our products is tested against the highest international standards in the industry. Continuous testing is in fact at the centre of our design and development processes.

Bespoke Tailoring is our product customisation service, specifically conceived for custom production. In addition to the products in our catalogue, the company offers its customers tailor-made lamps for specific needs, or modular variants of the existing products in the catalogue achieved through customisation with specific finishes, and lighting solutions that are studied meticulously for each project specifically, in compliance with all international legal requirements, yet ensuring the best performances possible.

From the initial design concept to end-of-process logistics, our experts team up with the customers to provide them with made-to-measure lighting solutions for residential areas, offices and co-working spaces, as well as hotels and showrooms. Andcosta guarantees uninterrupted support throughout the whole project.

Custom projects we have implemented include: the Facebook and Lenovo offices in Tel Aviv, hotels, spa and wellness centres, restaurants, showrooms and residential units, collaborating for example with architects such as Baranowitz and Kronenberg and John Pawson.

Andcosta was established in 2000 out of Carlo Zerbaro's passion for design, lighting solutions, research and creativity.

A designer and a visual artist, Carlo's activity spans from product design to photography and artistic direction. His career as a designer started in the 80s when he established collaborations with a multitude of national and international brands, for which he manufactured a wide range of products. His concept of design is characterised by in-depth knowledge of and an interest in materials, technological development and manufacturing processes. In 2000 he set up Andcosta and, ever since, he has focused his expertise on lighting technology bringing to life a product line marked by care for details and style consistency combined with utmost attention to the balance between contemporary evolution and the use of skilled craftsmen, which is typical of Made in Italy design. In his career he has received many acknowledgements and awards.

Carlo Zerbaro runs the company engineering department and is the coordinator of collaborations with architects and designers from all over the world.

In addition to our headquarters in Italy, Andcosta also has offices in Englewood, NJ - USA
